Marty,

our sophomore year has been wonderful, from Sept. - June. I've enjoyed every moment of it. Going to my first football game, working at the concessions in the Coliseum, taking Dinner Cd. together. Having our Dinner Cd. snacks (?) I never would have gotten through the year with out your to listen to my ravings about certain juniors!

Don't ever forget the wonderful speech tournaments
I gave. State in particular. We've had fun at. (even we did have to work a little.) You were a true friend when I was in the hospital. I really enjoyed those "when I was in the hospital" Above all remember our NFL fun. Coffee - shop supper. I should run for office. Finally convincing me I should in different home rooms. Remember this year when we home Room Periods. Remember next year when we the "Giant" you had convincing me I should me next year, Marty when we're in different classes,
a different "H.R.'s". Remember may the Great Pumpkin always be with you!

Perhaps one of the best examples of unification is that experienced by a graduating class. The realization that twelve years of close association will soon be at an end causes acquaintances to become treasured friendships. Each activity of the senior year acquires a gloss that long years cannot tarnish. People and places become more wonderful when we know we are about to lose them, and so these events of Senior Week, 1963, seem to those who have been a part of them the most wonderful time of our lives. Now they are in our past, and as we gaze at them in retrospect, these pictures of an epoch in our lives will be our memories.

As time goes by—
Further and further into the receding dusk

Passes our youth
Hurrying by on dancing feet
Dressed in a rustling gown
Humming soft music, drifting
From us on gossamer wings,
Laughing the sparkling laughter of youth.

An evening, a star,
And now—a memory.

Class Day

The people of my longings are not to be forever remembered by the world,
But are not to be forgotten by the ages.
The people are a fortress to the sensitivity of mankind;
The living breathing emotion of a God fearing man.
The people are a testimony to the simple moments that combined,

Build a world of unity and strength.
They are the quiet rememberings of moments past,
The quickened pulse in a second of love,
The instant of truth between now and then.
Theirs is the life of the very young,
The life that lives in gleeful discontent between the call of the future and the incessant tug of the well loved past.
Theirs is the privilege of age for they are young;
They are the chosen people,
They are youth.

Youth is more than a time of life,
More than a time of year when sunshine personifies goodness and ambition,
More than a stage of discontent or a year of irresponsibility.

Youth is life.
Who are we, the salt of the earth,
To judge and condone or to judge and condemn this life?
All life is a privilege.
So it is also with youth.
Youth is the most precious of the gems of life.
And, ironically, is given to the inexperienced.
The young, who cannot recognize their gift,
Receive it neither humbly nor resentfully.
They simply receive it as passively as the air they breathe.
Their gift is neither a burden nor a joy.
For the gift and the recipient are soon one.
The child is youth—
Youth is the child.

I speak here of a child—
As each is an individual
Each is a facet of a wondrous prism.
The prism reflects the qualities
And the misgivings of every facet of the whole.
Youth is an entity of individual minds and bodies;
Each facet is a unit of life.
The prism of youth reflects the hope and fears
Of an entire people, as well as the young.
Youth is here and now—
Youth is tomorrow and forever
—and ever.

The youth of my longings belongs only to herself.
Youth knows no boundaries and is, in character, impossible to confine.
The youth of my rememberings is found in the land called by the name of Shrewsbury.
The time is irrelevant to the character of youth.
Memories bring to mind the faces of this youth—
Faces embodying a common goal,
A common ground.
I shall call her the Youth of 1963 as she was known
To those who walked before her.
And those who followed.
The Youth of 1963 holds, for us who know and love her,
A vision of forms—one hundred fifty eight in number—
As vast as the universe in ideals.
I remember this youth as a way of life,
A life of four facets,
Each a moment to remember—
To ponder—

To question—
To protect.
The children of my youth are four years of high school.
Come now and meet them.

The first of the children,
The first of four,
Freshman was a child of ideals,
She came to new surroundings
Inside of which she would grow
In confidence and knowledge.
Before her danced the faces of the upperclassmen,
The experiences of a football game,
The wild cheers for a basket or a homerun,
The illusive quality known as school spirit.
Freshman was sent to watch
And to learn quickly as a child does.
She was to grasp and to find, in a moment of glory,
The key to open the years to come.
Before her stood her officers—Bill Leone, Beverly Bard, Linda Erikson, and Joanne Urban.
Her first dance came and went
And suddenly she was Sophomore.

Sophomore was a child of action,
A moment of laughter,
A time to move in bliss,
A time to act on impulse,
To explore.
Action was a strengthening force,
A force unknown in purpose
But admired in form.
Sophomore walked with confidence gained
From being one year wiser.
She followed Bill Leone, Claire Orrizzi, Linda Erikson, and Joanne Urban

Through class meetings,
And up and down the corridors
Now lined with the familiar faces
Of her classmates and her teachers.
Action was her way of life—
She had a zest for parties, snowball fights,
Her boys were fashionable that year
As they displayed the latest from Ware Pratts.
Her dance chairmen, Bob Kimball and Bev Bard,
Were somewhat camera shy,
But, Becuz she was young,
She had a good time.
But a year passes quickly,
Soon she was Junior.

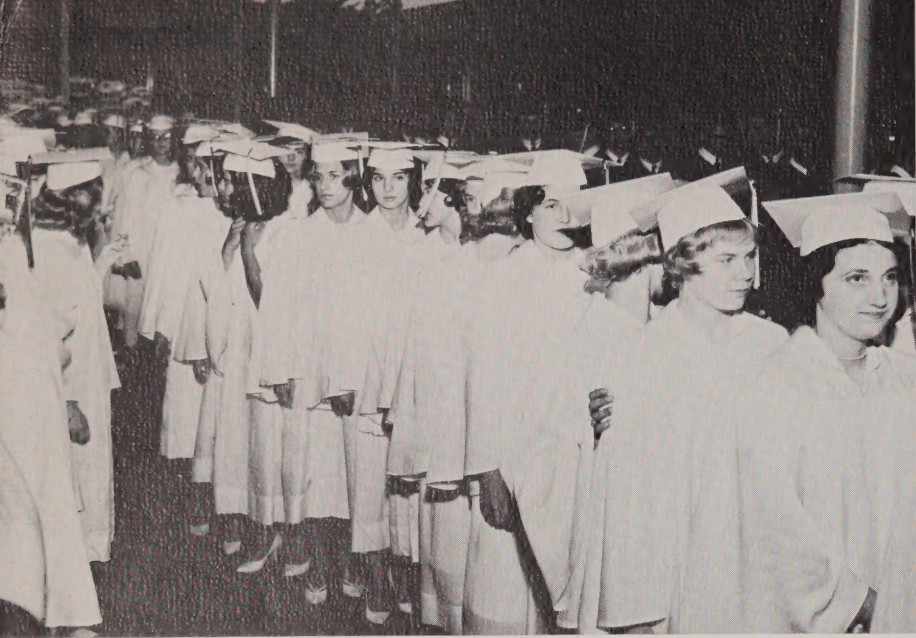

Junior was a child of sunshine,
A laughing imp of many moods,
A glint in her eye, her laughter
Well-known in every corridor.
Hers was a moment of something
Caught between yesterday and tomorrow.
She elected Steve Walsh, Claire Orrizzi, Linda Erikson,
and Margaret Argento
To crystallize her new ambitions for success.
She realized her new responsibility of preparing to be leaders
By sending Carol Kilroy, Bob Kimball, Gordon Knight, Jim Chelauski, and Don Englund to represent her in Student Council.

She flung herself at life
As she was caught up in the rhythm of youth.
Her parties sparkled gold as the pin she sold.

Graduation

A blue and white line
 Marches into the future,
 Into responsibility, into the world.
 The line is not alone;
 Its steps are repeated a thousandfold.

A long progression of youth
 Winds its way out of immaturity,
 Striving to release old bonds,
 And take up the burden of life.
 But the past is not a plaything
 To be wadded into a ball

And flung away.

A thousand memories haunt the line;

Their sly fingers caress a smile;

Their whispered thoughts provoke a tear.

The purposeful strides of the young

Take them ever forward to their destinies.

Their struggles will be endless;

Their defeats many; their victories hard-fought.

But their character is their defender;

Their inheritance is freedom,

And their legacy is hope.

THE PEOPLE, YES*

The Class of '63 —

Being an entity fused of a Multitude of personalities,
Each striving for his own success
Yet united in hopes, angers, and desires,
Here written in this book,
A book where every individual
Has the chance to be recorded
As himself and according to his
Part in the group,
The group which has cheered each victory,
Mourned each defeat,
Saluted its heroes,
Laughed at its comics,
Worked, studied, danced, played,
And now
Leaves —

The Class of '63, YES.

Dedication

Teacher, philosopher, philatelist, gentleman farmer — the many facets of Mr. Lalli's personality make him an interesting person to meet; his zeal for his profession makes him an inspiring teacher to know. "Teaching," writes Jesse Stuart, "is above and beyond teaching lessons and facts from a book. It is this, but more, too. It is looking beyond at the student himself."

And Mr. Lalli has taken the time to look beyond at each student. Slow to complain, quick to praise and encourage, he has sought to bring out the best in the young people with whom he has been associated. They, in turn, have found an appreciation of those values which make life richer and more fulfilling.

Joseph A. Lalli

Joseph A. Lalli

"The scaffolding holds the arch in place
till the keystone is put in to stay.
Then the scaffolding comes out.
Then the arch stands strong as all the massed pressing parts of the arch and loose as any sag or spread failing of the builders' intention, hope."

The scaffolding of education are the teachers,
the all-important mentors who fashion the base of the student's experience. As the keystones of knowledge and accomplishment are gradually acquired through years of schooling, and the senior stands poised and ready to leave, the scaffolding is removed, and the world is ready to test
the strength or failing of the instructor's labor.
The schools of the country are the producers of the people; the teachers are the molders.

When we need help or guidance . . .

Mrs. Claire Kimball is ready to aid students in finding information.

The place where academic barriers fall away and every student receives recognition of his personal and separate status in his class, the Guidance Department exerts every effort to place each student to the vocation for which he is best suited. Working with test scores and interviews, the Department prepares rigorously for the annual deluge of applications. From the seventh grader to senior, the members of the school are interviewed, tested, prodded and encouraged until each one has been launched into the world. With the future always in mind, the Guidance Department realizes its function of placing and advising hundreds of students each year.

Our basic tool is English...

A man who can express his ideas effectively is a man who will succeed. In both writing and speaking, the English Department emphasizes the development of the students' own thoughts in a logical pattern. Stimulated by the opportunity to use his own creative talents in weekly writings, the student is also introduced to the literary accomplishments of men of our own culture and of others. English is not a stagnant language. It is constantly growing as the people who speak it grow. The English Department seeks to expand with the language and thus increasingly experiments with new and better methods to enrich the student's knowledge of his speech.

Mr. James Peden explains physics problem.

Science has assumed the place of the leader in the twentieth century. Thus, in schools all over the country, as well as Shrewsbury, the Science Department has become the center of specialized knowledge. By placing both laboratory and classroom fundamentals in the grasp of students, the teachers allow free reign for curiosity and inventiveness. A vital and growing Department, Science plans to project more and more of its curriculum into the junior high and thus expand the scope of its senior high program. Not only of importance to the scientifically oriented, science sharpens the intellect and understanding—a facet of education necessary to every student.

Building Tomorrow's Future Today...

Mr. Theodore Lekas makes his class "cognizant of the facts" . . .

Miss Ethel Sawin
Social Studies Director

In no other way can a country hope to continue itself than by educating its young people to assume their role as citizens. The responsibility of democracy falls heavily unless the youth are prepared to bear it. Through a study of the past, a comprehension of the present, and a mature training for the future, the Social Studies Department aims to give the students at Shrewsbury a grasp of the principles their country represents. Liberty is a heritage easily abused by those who have not fought to win it. By providing the knowledge to maintain liberty, the Social Studies Department is producing responsible citizens of the future.

Mr. Francis Schlosser demonstrates the fundamentals of taxation.

Miss Helen Parks
Language Department Head

Helen M. Parks

With the increasing interdependence among the nations of the world today, the study of foreign languages has become the stepping stone to friendship and cooperation among men. The Language Department gives the student a solid background not only in the use of a language, but also in a knowledge of the people who speak it. Shrewsbury's stress on the modern methods of teaching languages makes the difficult process of learning another tongue a little easier and more enjoyable. By learning a foreign language, SHS students are developing the interest in other countries they will need to become better citizens in the leading country of the free world.

The Language of Science

Mr. John Jacobs
Mathematics Department Head

As our world advances farther into the space age, the need for men trained in the vastly new concepts of mathematics increases. Shrewsbury's Mathematics Department has set its goal in keeping with the revolution in math. The ancient challenge of a problem and its solution is met with the most modern methods by mathematics instructors with the latest training. Shrewsbury's teachers strive to impart the reasoning of the mathematician to every student by demonstration and nightly assignments. The skills developed by the Mathematics Department will aid not only those who plan mathematics as a career, but also those who will depend upon clear thinking to help them in the future.

Mr. John Jacobs explains a difficult problem.

We come to create . . .

Miss Nancy Nichols, director of the senior high art department, touches up a student's work.

A haven for the creative and original, the Art Department performs an important function in the high school. Guiding but not molding the student's gifts, the Department sparks ability to become talent. Individuality is necessarily all-important to the artist, and at Shrewsbury independence and new ideas in art are encouraged. The instructors try to give the student a sense of the timelessness and precision of art. While placing the important cornerstones of balance and technique, they allow a free reign of creativity. The artist holds a vital position in any society, for he leaves a visible record of his time long after he is gone.

Miss Nancy Massey, teacher of freshman students, instructs a student in the art of weaving.

Mr. Lyman Bowker, Shrewsbury Schools Art Department Head, inspects a still life.

The sound of music...

Mr. Ford in action.

Mr. Lorne Ford
Director of the Music Department

Mr. Robert Narducci
Orchestra Instructor

Music is a world unto itself, with its own language and its own distinctive means of speaking. Such characteristics could easily make music an esoteric thing, enjoyed only by musicians. Fortunately, the reverse is true, for music is understood by people of any country and provides rich experiences for any who care to explore its fascinating and myriad paths. The musician is disciplined to perform as an individual and with a group. The listener is introduced to all the worlds music can create and explore. The Music Department offers still another door to the creativity and enjoyment of the people.

Mr. Louis Vella, director of the Glee Club, rehearses for a future performance.

Strong bodies... strong minds

Mr. Francis Bergstrom
Director of Athletics

Miss Phyllis Hall
Girls' Gym Director

Miss Joyce Morris
Assistant Gym Director

Mr. Michael Klemnich
Physical Education

Archery is one of the many skills practiced by the girls in physical education classes.

Mr. Mario Marchisio
Physical Education

A basic part in education is the development of sound fitness habits. Through the emphasis of exercise and participation in sports, the Physical Education Department creates an awareness of the importance of physical well being. Each student receives the benefits of the modern gym facilities. Increased stress on the nation's fitness has given Physical Education the recognition it deserves in a society which tends to ignore strenuous movement. Be they archery or square dancing, the activities of the Physical Education Department are varied and demanding, while creating a fit and active student body.

Training for the future...

Mrs. Ellen Temple instructs a student in the art of sewing.

Miss Alice Hanley
Director of the Home Economics Department

Mrs. Eleanore Gaucher helps her Jr. High class prepare a dinner.

Mrs. Phyllis King proves the point that good cooking is welcome anywhere.

No student is expected to assume responsibility without some training. The Home Economics Department gives experience in every person's greatest responsibility—daily life. The atmosphere needed to transform a house into a home requires special talents—not only those of cooking, sewing, and cleaning. The ability to lead a full and uncomplicated life is an important one in creating a good environment for any family. By providing the basis for an orderly, efficient home and life, the Department hopes to create mature people ready to accept life and any challenge it might offer.

Preparing for a Business Career

In every country the commercial and business world is expanding to an even greater importance than ever before. Today's fast-paced transactions take place in a time when businessmen can fly from one country to another in a matter of hours. Correspondingly, the work of the ranks of secretaries and clerks behind the modern businessman has undergone revolutionary changes. The Business Education Department represents a collection of the latest machines and methods. Surrounded by a business-like atmosphere and always industriously engaged in their work, the girls of the Department typify the preparedness for the future diligent instruction can give.

Miss Mildred Shea, head of the Commercial Department, demonstrates the use of one of their machines.

Wood, weld, work...

Mr. Clifford Fontaine
Department Head

True education is the training and co-ordination of every skill in every student. The Industrial Arts Department offers opportunity for the manually talented student to develop and increase his skill. A vigorous and demanding program utilizing the complex machinery of the industrial world gives boys the ability to produce works of metal and wood which could be displayed in any professional shop. To prepare the student for entrance into a technical or trade school, or to provide an opportunity for inventiveness is the purpose of our expanding Industrial Arts Department.

Mr. Leo Mullin examines the welding of a student.

Example is the basis of Mr. Swift's teaching.

Mr. Enman directs the training of future draftsmen.

"I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way."

Life offers hundreds of paths to every man. While some know their goals, many try each new path they encounter, by choice or in an effort to find a place for themselves. Education is the attempt to prepare the youth of a country to have the fortitude needed to succeed on any road they take. For those who must travel many ways and paths, and for those who travel only one, education gives hope and working knowledge of lands and peoples, each of whom are also engaged in the search of every man — the quest for the future.

Honor

In every class there are those who are outstanding in their field, be it scholarship or athletics. Excellence never goes unrewarded, whether the recognition is concrete or abstract. On these pages, a few of the outstanding members of the Class of '63 are represented.

Athletic Award

For his outstanding performance in the Thanksgiving Day football game, Gerald Liljestrand was presented the Most Valuable Player award, given annually by the Young Men's Business Association.

Girls' State

Each year, girls selected to represent their high schools converge at Bridgewater State College to receive the knowledge of how to run a government. This year, Shrewsbury's representatives were Claire Orrizzi and Linda Willis.

National Merit

The National Merit Association awards both financial and honorary grants to students who qualify in competitive examinations. JoAnne Urban qualified as a Semi-Finalist, while James Chelauski, Gordon Knight, Claudia Dole, Ellen Hadidian, Richard Morton, Marilynn Miller, Donna Leach, and Karen Cumming received Letters of Commendation.

Awards

Harvard Book Award

The Junior Class boy who consistently represents the qualities of scholarship, character, and leadership, is awarded the Harvard Book Award. Robert Kimball received the honor from the Class of 1963.

DAR

The Thomas Bigelow Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution presented its annual award to Claire Orrizzi, upon recommendation by the Senior Class and Faculty.

Boys' State

The male counterparts of Girls' State attend Boys' State at the University of Massachusetts. Receiving first-hand knowledge of the responsibilities of democracy were Robert Kimball, Roger Adams, and Michael Bokis.

Larry Lozoraitis — Vice President

Student Government

Linda Erikson — Secretary

Donna Leach — Treasurer

Donald Englund — Vice President of Student Council

Student Council Advisor Henry Sullivan settles last minute problems with senior member Paula Steinberg.

Claudia Dole

James Chelauski

Senior Class Advisors — James Peder and Richard Gow

Senior Class Advisors — Mrs. Anna Belanger and Miss Nancy Nichols

UNDERCOLA

Life is not a stagnant quantity, but one which is constantly renewing itself. The old fades, and the young takes its place. The continuing process of replacement applies to every facet of existence, as well as to education. As one class graduates so another readies itself to leave the protective society of high school and enter the struggle of life. We, the Class of '63, are reminded of ourselves as we view the younger members of the school growing as we grew, maturing as we matured, and we leave wishing them success as we have been successful.

Student Council coordinates student-administration relationships.

Committee informs Principal James Cooke of proceedings of the last Student Council Meeting.

Our country is a stronghold of government by and for the people. The Class of '63, as a part of the vast numbers of students who will shortly take their places in the ranks of the voting public, has welcomed the opportunity to participate as a functioning governing body. The Student Council, led by our representatives, represents a valuable link in the experiences we must

Every step taken to increase the role of student government on the high school level is a step toward an informed and effective voting public.

Glee Club

We aren't just whistling "Dixie!"

Our nation's heritage is a legacy of spirituals, jazz, classics, and Broadway hits. Our people sing of many things—liberty, country, and selves. With such an inheritance of music, the young people of our society find it an easy task to sing. The students of SHS are no exception, and our Glee Club is justly famous for the melodious blend of voices which tells of long hours of striving for even more than perfection. The individual plays an important part in the Glee Club, for every voice is needed in creating harmony. In producing the swelling chords of song, the individual becomes a part of a larger entity—the Glee Club as a whole. Thus, with devotion to work and a sense of belonging to something worthwhile, the members of the Glee Club bring pleasure and release to every audience.

Sopranos, mature those voices!

The Glee Club's Madrigal Singers spread Christmas cheer throughout the town.

Concert time is here; the group endeavors to captivate its audience.

The excitement and tension reaches a peak before the concert.

The backbone of the band.

The High School Band performs a two-fold task in bringing music to the student body. In the auditorium the Band carries its listeners to a world created by the composer; it adds to their spirit on the football field. The quick precision of its members makes any scene alive with blue and grey uniforms and the glitter of shining instruments—each adding its separate sound to create a unified sound. An organization such as the Band, while giving a stimulus to the inherent musical ability of the people, demands the loyalty and labor of each of its members while training them to function as a unit. Any association with music expands the horizons of the performer as well as the audience.

The lights dim; the audience hushes; the conductor's wand is raised — lowered — and another performance of the Orchestra begins. Behind this smooth-functioning harmony of sound is the endless practice which is the only method of obtaining perfection. Another excellent concert is not the only benefit received from practice. The musician of the Orchestra reaps the benefit of introduction to all phases in the development of music. The rigorous rehearsal demanded by any participation in the arts trains and disciplines the student to make him accustomed to striving to reach his goal. A place in any country's culture will never be denied to the man with an interest in music.

National Honor Society

A school, as well as a nation, looks to its leaders for progress. Without people of ability and ideas, no society could hope for anything but chaos. A leader must not only be able to formulate and absorb ideas, but he must be ready to guide and serve his people and his classmates. The National Honor Society was formed to give due recognition to the students of the school who give leadership and service to their class. The student who attempts to better himself and his school, and who displays the qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, and service, is given membership in the National Honor Society as the highest praise which can be awarded him by students and faculty.

Remember when . . . ?

even Royalty!

The call of the stage is a powerful one anywhere, and Shrewsbury's amateur thespians have answered it with much spirit and ability. Proceeding from Shakespeare to modern drama, they have worked the ancient magic of the actor to charm their audiences into the world of tragedy and comedy. Not only sports requires the smooth unified teamwork of people working together—actors know well the rewards gained from diligent practice and remembered cues. Actors are not the only required ingredient for a successful play, however. Without the efficient work of the lighting crew, the make-up and the props committees, the actors would find themselves faced with overwhelming odds. Working under the knowledge that "the play's the thing," the members of the Masque and Wig Society have gained invaluable experience in working with people and drama—experience whose worth will aid them often.

Le Cercle Francais

To really learn a language, the student should have a knowledge of the society and people it represents. To thus bring the gaiety and culture of French life to its members is the purpose of the French Club. By filmstrips and speakers the charm and sophistication of France is brought out in greater measure than can be devoted to it in the classroom. The highlight of the year for the Cercle is the French banquet, in which the eager gourmet is introduced to the world renowned French cuisine at a French restaurant. By offering an awareness of the social side of French, Le Cercle Francais enriches the study of a valuable language.

La Sociadad Espanola

The staccato tap of dancing feet so indicative of Spanish culture is no stranger to Sociadad members of SHS. A trip to Boston to view the famous Jose Greco and his dancers began the new year for the club. The study of a language cannot suffer by activities which stimulate interest in it. Thus by filmstrips, talks and a visit to a Spanish restaurant, the Sociadad seeks to introduce its members to Spanish and Latin American people, their lives, and their feelings. The gay and romantic customs of the Spanish speaking world enliven the study of the language in the form of the Felix Navidad party, complete with all the customary pageantry of that season. By exploring a different part of the Spanish world than that of the classroom, the Sociadad Espanola makes informed and interested students, well-versed in the traditions of the people whose language they study.

Latin Club

For a supposedly "dead" language, Latin has many enthusiastic supporters at Shrewsbury. The existence of the Latin Club supplements and enlivens the study of a classical language not usually associated with fun. Slides and projects lead the student along ancient ways and through marble villas; participating in pastimes enjoyed by the Romans gives the Latin scholar an insight into their lives. Enriching the lighter side of Latin is the continuation of an old Roman custom—enjoying fine food at a banquet. Under the leadership of the sophomores, the Latin Club has successfully mixed the study of one of the oldest civilizations with an awareness of modern Italian life. By acquainting its members with the lives and society of the Romans, the Latin Club quickens interest in the people as well as their language.

Homemaking Club

A relatively new organization, the Homemaking Club has expanded in its second year to provide for more participation in the world of homemaking arts. From senior to sophomore, the girls learn more in improving personal, family, and community relationships. Speakers and service projects intensify the lessons learned in the club. All the labor put into an organization such as the Homemaking Club results in concrete rewards for every member. Learning as individuals and as a group, the members of the Homemaking Club are training to become the wives and mothers of tomorrow.

The man or woman who can speak effectively makes an active and influential citizen. With the purpose of producing more of these people, the NFL puts forensic ability to the test in countless tournaments — from which SHS usually returns with all the honors. The participant in the League finds his speaking and reasoning ability, with his knowledge of current affairs, increasing with each event he attends. One of the most active of SHS organizations, the NFL is famous for its daffodil sale and football concessions — as well as its members' persuasive powers in convincing people to partake thereof! The NFL year is climaxed by the annual banquet, at which the old graduating officers toast their successors with that most ancient tradition — the wassail bowl.

Planning

The new and gleaming library at SHS is efficiently staffed by the members of the 020 Club. The purpose of the organization being service, the girls use the latest methods in helping the student body to use the facilities provided for study and research. The librarians are responsible for a multitude of duties—checking, shelving, covering and repairing books. Their service is not confined solely within the walls of the school, for the proceeds of their Christmas cake sale are sent to the Worcester County Association for the Blind. The girls are trained to maintain order and care for the precious store of knowledge contained in the library, as well as to give ready assistance to all who seek knowledge.

Service and poise are taught to Shomty girls by an annual Christmas project and a tea—the high point of the club's activities in which the girls display the self-assurance they will need for success in business. The instruction of the classroom is expanded and made more personal by the participation in club affairs. While teaching valuable characteristics, the Shomty Club reveals a tantalizing view of the business world to its members.

Boys' Gym Leaders

The Boys' Gym Leadership Club is a selective group of boys, who, under the guidance of Coaches Kleminich and Marchisio, have stressed gymnastic ability as a requirement for membership in their club. Despite the handicap of having limited time in which to practice, the gym leaders have rolled and climbed their way into the appreciation of the spectators at every performance. Membership in the organization develops both muscular and team coordination, attributes which can never harm any man, whether he is an athlete or a businessman. Scholarship, a sense of fair play, and real athletic ability are the requisites for joining the Gym Leaders, which strives to build better teammates and better students.

Girls' Gym Leaders

A "new" club on the social roster, the Girls' Student Leaders was formed to give the student an opportunity to work with her peers. The Gym Leaders are responsible for checking attendance, caring for equipment and giving opening exercises in front of gym classes. To vary assignments, each girl receives a teaching project on the junior high level. The girls earn their distinctive blue and gold pins by holding a cake sale. Extra curricular activities are not always merely for pleasure, as shown by this group which does much to give self-confidence and develop a good teacher-student relationship.

„Sittin' Pretty

Brian Scott phototypes TOWN CRIER pages.

The COLONIAL JOURNAL, a recently instituted magazine containing student creative writings, is edited by the Journalism Class.

Freedom of the press has always been one of America's most cherished possessions. Since the founding of our country, the newspaper has acted as a medium between the people and the world around them.

Today, in its own small sphere, the Town Crier aims to convey the news and act as a ready outlet for the artistic and original student. The newspaper is an organ of the people, whether on the state, town or school level. The Town Crier attempts to echo the feelings of the school. It is a written history of a school's hopes, angers, and achievements. Each class contributes its own personality to the paper, and as it leaves takes its portion with it, leaving a void for the next class to fill with its own aspirations.

Junior Red Cross

While depending upon the student body for aid in its campaigns, the Junior Red Cross remains an importantly independent organization. Consisting of members elected by the high school, Junior Red Cross begins its year with an Enrollment Drive and continues its service to hospitals, the International Children's Fund, and the Red Cross Service Fund until the end of the school term. Both cooperation and responsibility are valuable by-products of membership. Working with and for others, Junior Red Cross members receive the type of training which makes outgoing and responsible citizens.

Y-Teen Club

The Y-Teens are associated with an organization known everywhere for its spirit of helping young and old. To carry on the tradition of service of the YWCA on the high school level is the purpose of the organization. Gifts for hospitals and the aged characterize the Y-Teen Club's activities during the year. Fellowship as well as service is included in membership, however. The girls lead an active social life, running from college tours to dances. By carefully planning their program, the officers present changing and original projects at each meeting. Devotion to the care and comfort of others, as well as gaining all possible enjoyment from recreation marks the members of the Y-Teen Club as useful members of society, both now and in the future.

Learning together

"Life is hard; be steel, be rock."

ATHLETICS

Life demands strong minds and bodies. The weak have shown consistent inability to withstand the rigors of existence in a growing country. The young men and women who make a practice of exercise and athletic participation are the adults who are alert and contributing members of their society. Fitness can never be stressed enough.

Hello, kids—How do you do?
S. H. S. says Hi to you.

Cheerleaders

Ten heads are better than one.

Hold that pose!

"We've got the team that can't be beat!" With these words ten vivacious girls cheer the team on to victory. Always symbols of vitality and drive, the cheerleaders lend their support to the athletic endeavors of the school. With impelling determination the spirited cheers of the girls encourage the fans of SHS to add their voices in the task of telling the boys that everyone is behind them. After school, the shouts of practice echo through the corridors as each girl aims for perfection.

But the noisy bleachers empty all too soon as another season draws to a close. The joys of victory and the disappointments of defeat become only memories taken with each girl as she leaves Shrewsbury for other pursuits. Bleachers are quickly filled with new faces, however—each filled with the same enthusiasm and praiseworthy characteristics which marked their predecessors. They, too, await the chance to cheer the team to victory, and begin a new season, which in time will fade for them.

"... Satisfied."

And pretty, too!

With the combination of speed, skill, and talent, the girls' strong determination to win pervaded each game and practice session. Undaunted by the cold fall air or the long vigorous hours of practice, their enthusiasm remained high. Whether anticipating a goal or preparing an offensive attack, the team always remained fine examples of sportswomen. With victory as their goal, the seniors, as well as the underclassmen accumulated winning goals. Most importantly, the team functioned as a co-ordinated unit — each player representing a special part in the structure of the game. The individual responsibility of each member as a part of the group helped to develop skill and experience. The coordination of responsibility and close teamwork provided the girls' hockey team with a satisfying season.

Coach Marchisio

Football

Determination, talent, and hard work enabled the football team of '62 to record the first winning season at Shrewsbury in eight years. The victorious season was a fitting tribute to the abilities of Coach Mario Marchisio, who, since coming to Shrewsbury, has welded successively stronger and better teams each year.

After beginning the fall with two losses, Shrewsbury easily defeated three of its opponents and lost a hard fought contest to Hudson by one point. Two more wins and one loss completed the squad's list of games for a successful year.

Touchdown, Shrewsbury!

"We've got the Shrewsbury spirit, spirit..."

Blazing down the victory trail.

For those in the stands as well as those on the gridiron, football is one of the most exciting and stimulating sports. A winning team does much to enthuse the spirit of every fan, and this year Shrewsbury's strong eleven sparked an abundance of spirited reaction from the stands.

The Colonials had an entire team of football heroes. The offensive prowess of Maurice Bisceglia, who dazzled the fans with his fifty or seventy-five yard dashes into the end zone; Robert Kimball, co-captain and cool-headed quarterback; Thomas Garganigo, a slippery and speedy end; and juniors Michael Trippi and Paul Graham, made Shrewsbury a sure winner.

The team's biggest emphasis was on defense. The big men up front were the ones who won many a game for Shrewsbury. These powerful defenders were Jerry Liljestrand, a 270 pound team by himself; Robert Carlson, 200 pounds of immovable muscle; Dick Morton, a line-smashing guard; Don Lacoursiere and Paul Jordan, a sophomore and freshman respectively, each returning next year with the rest of the team to continue the Colonials' bid for a perfect record.

Shrewsbury receives awards after Thanksgiving Day game with Auburn. Colonials won 36-14.

In every endeavor there are necessarily those who star. For a grueling game such as football, every boy who undergoes the physical and mental coordination required to play is an example of the best possible athletic instruction. The boy who can run the faster, the tackle who can stop more opponents, and the guard who can hold longer than the other members of the team, however, justly receive the accolade for a fine performance.

For the last two years at the Thanksgiving game with Auburn, the senior who has contributed most to the game receives the Most Valuable Player Award. The most valuable player of the 1962 Thanksgiving Game was a tackle whose behemoth strength and outstanding ability have been evident throughout the football year — Jerry Liljestrand.

Watch out! There's 270 pounds of muscle behind this man.

Girls' Basketball

A fast paced game, basketball calls for quick decisiveness and sure skill. The conflict of any sport demands physical as well as mental alertness. A tight defense, a quick pass and a well-aimed shot are only a few of the skills a girl must master before the team can function as a coordinated unit. Long, hard hours of practice and planning are spent to build the structure of teamwork.

Whether defying opponents as anxious as they to win, or practicing a difficult play, the girls' basketball team kept their lively enthusiasm at a high key. Undaunted by a low score or stiff opposition, the girls never forgot their fair play and good sportsmanship. Though suffering from lack of experience, the team was always eager to conquer the court.

Boys' Basketball

Stimulated by the necessary quick action of their game and the stiff competition they meet, the boys' basketball squad is one of the most skilled teams of Shrewsbury. Their shoes pound the courts in precise plays, in practice and in games. The basketball court is a place for both individual and school honors. Shrewsbury has been fortunate in having alert and talented athletes on its basketball squads for many years. As each season closes, and the grinding sounds of the buzzer fade, new hoopsters begin to dream of their chance on the court, and their chance to continue a winning tradition.

"Never say die" could easily be the descriptive phrase of the Colonial basketballers. By expending the extra effort needed for a victory, they overcame half-time deficits in all but two games of the season. The combination of talents in Coach Michael Kleminich and Captain Bob Kimball's squad led to an exciting and fast-paced season. Both underclassmen and senior members of the team starred in baskets and spirit. Skill and optimism were decisive factors in making the last basketball season a victorious one for SHS.

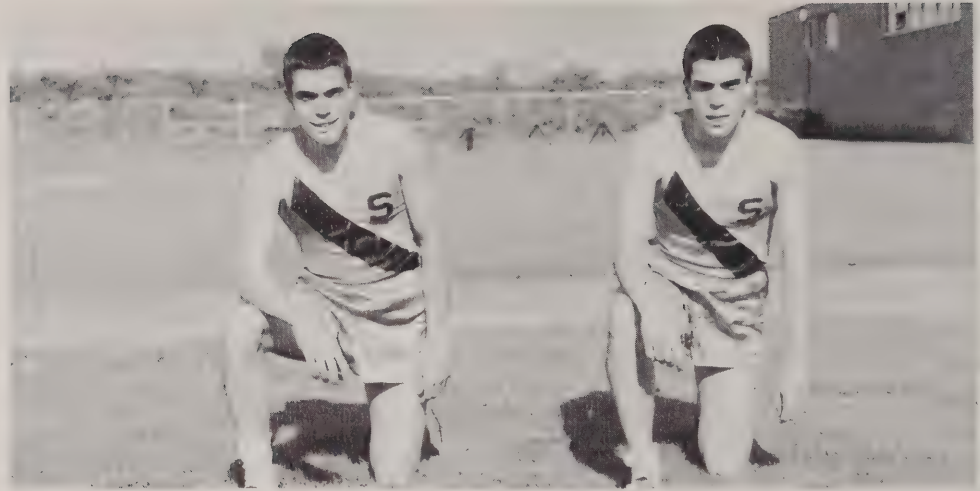

The Colonials practice too, and hard!!!

Even when surrounded by enemies the Colonials shine.

Cross Country

"Twin champions" — Joel and John Ponte.

The Colonial harriers literally race up hill and down for their many victories in cross country competition. A familiar sight to everyone, the Cross Country team pounds the streets of Shrewsbury building up endurance for the long, taxing runs of the meets. The intense concentration and practice required of the boys creates stamina to sustain them in the grueling runs they must make to retain their high numbers of victories. In meets with other teams in school and civic contests, the team puts their individual and group skill to the test in the burning desire to win. As each member increases his fitness and experience in the sport, he builds his usefulness to his future position in society, as every country needs men who know the grinding competition of a race.

Baseball

The snap of a fast ball hitting a glove and the shout, "Batter up!" herald the beginning of the baseball season. Although baseball does not draw the interest accorded to basketball and football at Shrewsbury, the boys on the team are as keenly competitive as any gridiron or court star. The lure of the national pastime draws both seniors and underclassmen to practice diligently for each contest. As the season advances, so does the effort and enthusiasm of the players. Whether chalking up strikes and runs, or swiftly running the bases, the baseball team display their skill as athletes and good sportsmen.

Co-captain, John Nelson, warms up.

Coach William Donovan, R. Kimball, K. Casey, R. Danielson, D. Ober, P. Allison, D. Reed.

Golf

Fore . . . Score!

The Juniper Hill Golf Club in Northboro plays "home" to the Shrewsbury Golf Team. The game which is becoming a form of relaxation for thousands of people is taught as a competitive sport at Shrewsbury. With each match played, whether it is a victory or defeat, the team sharpens its skill and increases its experience. Each year, as new members join the team, the veterans close their ranks by making new pros out of novices. The competition offered in a game of golf is as intense as two evenly matched teams of experts can make it. The training and experience gained by the members of the Golf Team will be put to good use when they become the adult masters of the links.

Will he make it?

Track

J. Ponte, M. Trippi, B. Mader, P. Graham, W. Pierce, R. Porter, D. LaCoursiere, P. Casanelli, A. Tamburo.

With the advent of spring, the long-winded members of the Track Team make their appearance again. Calling on all their initial and reserve speed, Shrewsbury's team strives to turn every meet into victory. The dashes and relay runs which demand energy and speed from the runner, are only two of the categories in the many-faceted sport of Track. The shot-put, discuss throw, high jump, and broad jump require strength and endurance. In order to qualify for the standards of the Central Massachusetts Conference Meet, the boys must rigorously perform the essential ingredient for athletic success — practice, long weary hours of it. Track requires every player to be able to rely on his own determination and skill, a requirement which is a prime ingredient of success in any endeavor.

Crew

Bruce Burden

Allan Campbell

William Leone

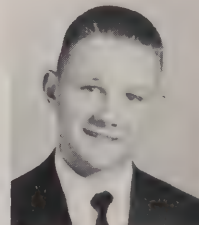

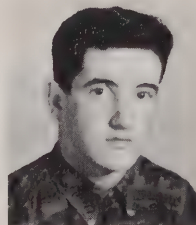

Gerald Liljestrand

The sure co-ordination of conditioned muscles is the mark of a crewman. A successful crew requires the utmost effort by every man on the team. With every man in unison, the sculls break cleanly through the water, developing physical and abstracts benefits. A sport such as crew builds bodies as well as gives every participant the knowledge that his work is all-important for victory. Under Coach Ken Burns, Shrewsbury has maintained one of the best high school crews in the state. Creating sportsmen and a spirit of teamwork, crew is a valuable sport for every boy.

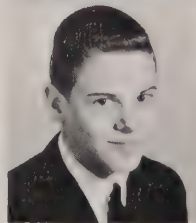

Mr. Kenneth Burns, Coach

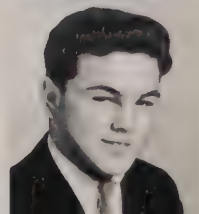

Brian Garvey, Tom Hammerly

Gerald Turnquist, David Sullivan

In the night, and overhead a shovel of stars for keeps, the people march:

"Where to? what next?"

The years of our youth are beginning. When the last locker slams, and the last tearful or hurried good-bys are said, we will be separate beings, members of the Class of '63 only in disjointed memories of names and faces. The years of our formal education, as individuals and as a unit, are, for some, beginning and, for others, at an end. Our gains and losses as a class remain only on the pages of this book — our book which we wrote with every action we made. A greater period of learning awaits us all, and none can tell what will become of us, or how much being together has helped us.

To Marty
I know that you a real swell
kid
Bob Wiggins

Marty,
we sure
had fun at debate tournaments and
during home room.
who says that debating
is hard work & not us!
"63"

To Marty,
good luck in the
future years,
Al Fleck

Marty,
Are you going to take a try at Spanish next year? I sure hope not. For Miss Parks sake!
Only kidding. You're a swell kid, and we've had some swell times.

Yours ("Bleausee")

To Marty,
Good Luck to you.
Lydia Chang
Irene

Marty,
You need a dictionary
to understand this:
Jeg omker deg
Lykke!
Hiken
Marte

I love you
I love you
I love you, I do
But don't get excited!
I love monkeys too.
Best of luck always
Linda

Marty
Best of luck in the future &
a real swell
kid Linda to

Marty,

To a Home Room
pal and former
debating friend,
Good luck now
and always

Karin M.

To Marty,

The new Recording Secretary of N.F.C. I hope you make as big an impression as this large writing.

Always,

Edna "The Fake" Kelly
